Course Title: Commercial Sectional Door Systems

Course Number: AEC887-01:1 (WD-EN-88702-1217)

Course Description: Specifying the right sectional door system for your commercial project can have a great effect on the health, safety, and welfare of building occupants. This course covers commercial sectional door systems, including the various types of doors available and their associated characteristics including energy efficiency and durability, along with a discussion on how to specify the correct door to meet project requirements.

Learning Objectives:

Differentiate how different types of commercial sectional doors and openers used in various applications contribute to the health, safety, and welfare of building occupants.

Demonstrate how to specify sectional doors for various applications depending on specific project needs, such as security, efficiency, etc.

Define the various options for the operation of commercial sectional doors, such as motor operators and track configurations.

Explain the various additional options available that allow commercial sectional doors to be both functional and aesthetically pleasing.
